STREET SUPERINTENDENT ADMITS ACCEPTING POOR COAL; ASKED NO REBATE

Agent Said He Was Sorry, but Weather Was Too Bad to Get Kind the Contract Called for—Excuse Deemed Sufficient—No Test Made of Coal Supplied to City—Never Thought of It.

Superintendent of Streets James H. Doyle, who is under indictment of the Grand Jury, charging him with corruptly offering a bribe to secure the passage of Mayor Fitzgerald's loan bill, was the chief witness before the finance commission to-day in the probe of alleged graft in connection with the city's coal contracts.

Attorney M. J. Sughrue, who is conducting the case for the commission, also desires to secure the attendance of Mr. Doyle's predecessor in office, James Donovan.

The attorney did not spare Mr. Doyle in his examination. Time and time again he warned the superintendent of streets, who was the Mayor's chief lieutenant in the last campaign, answer in detail questions that the witness would have replied to with some terseness.

Doyle admitted that he had received complaint about one or two lots of coal purchased from the Niver company. He asked for an explanation. The representative of the coal company said that he was sorry, but he had been unable to get the quality of coal he wanted, owing to weather conditions and the inability of boats to get here.

Admits Accepting Poor Coal.

"Mr. Douglas and I agreed that the excuse offered by the company was sufficient," said the witness.

"Did you suggest that a test be made?" asked Mr. Sughrue.

"It didn't occur to me," answered Mr. Doyle.

He admitted that no effort was made by him to see that the city was reimbursed for the poor coal for which the price of the best had been paid.

"Who was the representative of the Niver company that called on you?" asked Mr. Sughrue.

"Mr. Kious," he replied.

It was Mr. Kious, the missing agent of the Niver company, who was called by the commission to see the "three chiefs" for the Mayor's program to Michael J. Mitchell at old Grand.

The superintendent of streets did say that he noticed the Niver company that if the quality of the coal did not improve he would take steps to assist the city.

He said he did not know the quality of the coal was so poor.

POLITICIANS KILLED FOR 'PHONE INQUIRY

SEVERAL APPEAR AT COURTHOUSE UPON BEING SUMMONSED BY MORAN.

District Attorney John R. Moran today began an investigation into the relations of politicians with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Among those waiting in his office for appearance before the grand jury or to be summoned by him in private, were Comptroller Thomas Doherty of Ward 2, Councilman Thomas M. Joyce of Ward 17 and Councilman Max Holbrook of Ward 6.

Three other men summoned for interrogation along the same lines, it is understood, are John J. Laddigan, Edward J. McCreary and John Cannon, six of seven men politicians have been summoned.

Most of the men who were called to the district attorney's office in this case were summoned by summonses issued at Mr. Moran's direction by indictment clerk Isaac H. Manning.

This was the first time such a step has been taken by the prosecuting attorney of Suffolk county, and was the immediate result of another clash between Moran and Clerk John P. Manning of the Superior court.

After a 30-minute talk with Mr. Moran and Mr. Manning, Mr. Manning left the district attorney's office.

Mr. Manning's office will be in the city's telephone exchange for the day and the city's telephone exchange will be in the city's telephone exchange for the day.

FIREMEN HURT AS HOSE WAGON UPSSETS

ASSISTANT CHIEF HAS NARROW ESCAPE ON WAY TO TRIVIAL BLAZE.

Three firemen were seriously hurt and a hose cart badly damaged as the result of a trivial fire in an ash barrel to the rear of No. 71 Clayton street, Dorchester, today, while Assistant Fire Chief James Jordan had a narrow escape from being picked out of the light wagon in which he was riding.

The blaze did no damage whatever, but the fire department had three men incapacitated and one man badly hurt, he may be crippled for life.

Another sensational incident of the fire was the heavy of Policeman James J. North of the Dorchester station, who tried his life in the fire.

North, who was in the fire, was badly hurt and a hose cart badly damaged as the result of a trivial fire in an ash barrel to the rear of No. 71 Clayton street, Dorchester, today, while Assistant Fire Chief James Jordan had a narrow escape from being picked out of the light wagon in which he was riding.

LIFE PRISON SENTENCE FOR YOUNG PREBLE

BATH, Me., Sept. 5.—Life Imprisonment at hard labor in State prison was the sentence imposed by Judge J. O. Whitehouse in the Supreme Court upon Sidney K. Preble, the 26-year-old boy, who was found guilty by a jury last night of the murder of his companion, Norris W. Keith.

When the sentence was pronounced Preble bowed two or three times to the clerk and, looking around the courtroom, smiled at the first time during his trial.

He will be taken to Thompson's to-night, where he will be kept in the cell.

Beatrice Fairfax Deplores New Styles in Footwear, and Asks: Isn't This Shoe Absurd?

By Beatrice Fairfax

"B" MEN'S shoes will be very pointed in the toe and extremely high-heeled. This is the outcome of the convention of shoe manufacturers now in session in Chicago.

It is rather humiliating to think that shoe manufacturers are so sure of woman's vanity that they calmly set a work to produce shoes that are more grotesque and unbecoming to the world than those made for men. There is no more vanity than when you wear shoes that are so absurd.

And now, young women, what are we going to do about it? You are going to be foolish enough to follow blindly along Modern Fashion's oftentimes perilous way and ruin your feet and your health by pointed toes and high heels.

Are you going to be wise and insist on wearing shoes that do not hurt your feet and throw your body into impossible angles? There is no reason why you should wear pretty, fashionable, but good shoes that are sensible in the matter.

Just imagine your No. 8 foot into a No. 4 shoe. Not only will you suffer agonies, but no one will be deceived into the belief that you have a smaller foot.

Get your shoes wide enough and long enough, and then take good care of your shoe leathers as always in the morning. If you attend to these things, your feet will be in good luck and neat. Another important thing to be done is to keep the feet in good luck. Run-down heels that ruin the smoothness of shoes.

After the Hours
The exaggerated high heel not only affects your walk, but what is far more serious, affects your health. It forces you to stand in a strained, unnatural position that brings all your weight on the wrong part of your foot. High heels are frequently to blame for broken ankles, and those who wear them that affliction tell me that the pain is extreme.

High-heeled, elaborate shoes are atrociously bad for street wear. For house wear, dainty, thin slippers are well enough, but if you are sensible, you will never wear high heels or very pointed shoes.

There is another shoe to this topic that we might as well touch on now that we are about it, and that is the wearing of low shoes in cold weather. Some women and girls are foolish enough to wear low shoes and pumps in the late Fall and Winter.

Indoors as they are simply courting cold, pneumonia, consumption, and all sorts of horrors.

When you buy your Winter shoes choose stout, sensible ones for street wear. Don't go about shivering and looking half-dressed.

Incidentally, low shoes in Winter time are sure to give you a red nose, and even the most fashionable girl would not look very pretty with a red nose, would she?

HERE is the latest product of the shoe expert's brain. It is warranted to produce corns and to crush the foot more than any shape of 1917 ever did. This shoe is abominably high, the toes are abnormally pointed. The straps, lacing is one of its features.

Woman Has A Divorce Evil Cure

FOR years Mrs. P. Violet Searns, a St. Louis woman, has made divorce life her study. She is one of the few women who recognize the fact that the divorce evil comes from the same source as the evil of the divorce itself. Here is how she puts it:

By Mrs. P. Violet Searns

It is a question which will not be solved until the wife has knowledge and understanding of housework in all its details.

Not only are many wives ignorant of the details of housework, but they are unwilling to accept the responsibility of doing it. If the husband is to be a good father, he must be a good housekeeper.

If a woman would be a well-beloved wife, she must be a good housekeeper. She must give up the idea of being a social butterfly and give up the idea of being a social butterfly.

The wife, the mother, cannot attend to her duties in the morning, participate in a luncheon at noon, run to a card party in the afternoon, and be a good housekeeper in the evening, and expect to be a good housekeeper in the morning.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

BY THE PROFESSOR

BEAUTY is a beautiful thing, and good teeth are a beautiful thing. The natural color of the teeth is white, and is not counteracted by anything, except to destroy the enamel and cause decay and discoloration.

Ample water, or better still, salt water, should be used to rinse the mouth with several times a day. Use a tooth brush which is soft and clean, and brush the teeth up and down the whole tooth, not just the surface.

Brush from the gums down on the upper teeth and from the gums up on the lower teeth. Turn every part of the surface clean and fresh. Use dental floss between the teeth after you brush to remove any particles of food that may be left.

Do not use a stiff brush, as it is apt to injure the gums and cause decay. Use a soft brush, and brush the teeth gently.

DEAR PROFESSOR
Will you please tell me if there is anything that will increase the beauty and weight of a young man, about sixteen years of age. My health has been poor since I was a child.

stomach even of age. My health has been poor since I was a child.

If nature built you in miniature it is probable that she intended you to remain so, and that all you can do is to make you much larger. However, in some cases much is done by the proper exercise and food. Take all the outdoor exercise you can, walking, riding, climbing, swimming, etc., and take practice on the tennis court. Also, take practice on the tennis court.

CHAPTER IV.

AFTER breakfast that evening I awoke and over to Commonwealth avenue and with my pipe for company, I took up a position, on the steps of the mansion closed for the summer. Excepting for the carriage at the cross-tie, there was not a vehicle in sight. I looked at my watch. It was half past seven. A half hour remained then.

"By a hunk!"

As I sat there, my eyes seemed to have sprung out of the ground, stood before me. A somewhat frightened look of bewilderment was in my hand.

"How much?" I asked.

"Watch it, watch it," he whined. I looked around, hoping to catch sight of a detective. The fellow had no idea. As far as I could see, no person. The man's presence at that hour was not surprising.

"Ten cents," I said.

"Twenty cents," he urged.

I held out ten cents.

"You like?" he inquired to the house.

"Not a bit," I said.

Waiting.

I glanced at my watch. It lacked but two minutes of nine. As I told the Italian the hour, I noticed the police agent was minutes of nine. As I told the Italian the hour, I noticed the police agent was minutes of nine. As I told the Italian the hour, I noticed the police agent was minutes of nine.

For an instant, when I got to my feet he was half way down the block. "Don't mind," I said. "I've been waiting for the moment the more sure." "Don't mind," I said. "I've been waiting for the moment the more sure."

As I sat there, my eyes seemed to have sprung out of the ground, stood before me. A somewhat frightened look of bewilderment was in my hand.

"Not a bit," I said.

Failed.

The fellow was probably a member of the gang. He had been detained to make a diversion in the event the police had seized the money.

He had picked me, an isolated waiter, and was about to proceed. As soon as I related to him the police took up the correct line of action, he was arrested. I was released. I was released. I was released.

LODGE MEMBERS OUT GRAFTING AS STATE ISSUE

Disclosed Rottenness of Fitzgerald Era and "Better Railroad Service" the Slogans.

SILENCE ON HISGEN BILL

The Lodge "issue" are out. The Republican machine, as at present advised, means to fight the battle this autumn. "Better railroad service" and some measures in the framework of administration of the city of Boston as may be moved in the House Committee on Commerce.

Republican politicians, taking their cue from "Mr. Rogers of Boston," admitted that every stump speaker in the service will point out the rottenness of the present administration in the House during the four-week red-hot campaign. They will reveal the rottenness of the road service, picking up each other, bludgeoning, and they will ask the House to pass the bill.

It is ready to sweep Republican rule in the State with an administration of Boston.

Silence on Hisgen Bill.

Directly, nothing will be said about the bill. The bill is the Massachusetts bill. The bill is the Massachusetts bill. The bill is the Massachusetts bill.

"Old Home Week."

At Natick, yesterday, Senator Lodge told the most of the National Convention. He told the most of the National Convention. He told the most of the National Convention.

About the Surplus.

Mr. Lodge reported his declaration that the best thing to do with the $100,000,000 surplus is to begin retiring the government bonds. He likes the Cortis plan of placing this fund among the national banks, but if he were Congressman, he would not do it.

Quid in Dialect.

Governor David told stories in Scottish and Irish dialect. The act was well received. Congressman Foster also told some stories. One of his best was that the tariff was a good thing.
